Discussion

What are some differences between middle school and high school?

Some things to expect in high school

- Increased responsibility.
- There are no teams like in middle school.
- All classes count for high school credit and affect your GPA.
- You'll have more courses to choose from.
- More extracurricular activities, including sports!

Remember the high school course planner you did in Naviance recently?

Let's play Kahoot to see what you might remember!

GPA

Grade Point Average

A single number that is an average of the grades you earned in all of the high school credit classes you've taken.

Sequential Electives & Prerequisites

Sequential elective – Series of electives where content builds through continuing course levels.

Prerequisite – Any class that you must take before you take a higher level of that class.

Obvious Examples

- Photography I → Photography 2
- Digital Art I → Digital Art 2
- Journalism I → Journalism 2
- Auto Tech I → Auto Tech 2

Other Examples (that aren't so obvious)

- Advanced Band → Advanced Band
(or really, any music class that's taken twice)
- STEM Design → STEM Engineering
- Nutrition & Wellness/Intro to Interior Design → Nutrition & Wellness (Gourmet Foods)
- Marketing I → Sports Marketing

Honors Classes

1. Do you enjoy the subject and want to dive deeper?
2. Are you good at the subject and want to go at a faster pace?
3. Do you have the time for it when you add in your extracurriculars and out of school activities?
4. Have you talked to your teacher and parents about it?

What questions do you have about...

Classes?

Graduation requirements?

Things that haven't been covered?

Students analyze the ways authors use language and techniques to shape meaning in literary and nonfiction texts, and they consider how texts provide insight to our complex and changing world. In addition to print texts, students analyze and evaluate how media messages influence beliefs and behaviors across time, place, and culture. Through the study of these varied, authentic texts, students build a sophisticated vocabulary by applying their knowledge of connotations, denotations, word origins, and structures. Students apply their language and communication skills to create texts for authentic audiences and purposes, and they use writing as a tool for personal inquiry and communication. Students also communicate through oral presentations and small-group collaboration specific to authentic situations. Throughout the course, students develop a formal research paper that analyzes complex issues through the synthesis of diverse sources.
